tony waddington director of a working man s ballet is a biography of the former stoke city manager tony waddington one of the most underrated figures in 60s and 70s football it charts how a man with the appearance of an urbane bank manager belied the stereotype of the hard nosed football manager as he turned around the fortunes of an ailing club on the brink of going out of business instead waddington led the potters to promotion secured the club s first major trophy and challenged for a league title in a season bedevilled by bad luck before a financial calamity led to his departure an advocate of free flowing football yet fielding some of the most uncompromising defensive players of his era he reinvigorated old pros inspired young players and won the adulation of a generation of fans tony waddington or waddo as he was affectionately known to fans and players alike achieved all this as the director of what he fondly termed a working man s ballet the celtic languages and groups called keltoi i e celts emerge into our written records at the pre roman iron age the impetus for this book is to explore from the perspectives of three disciplines archaeology genetics and linguistics the background in later european prehistory to these developments there is a traditional scenario according to which celtic speech and the associated group identity came in to being during the early iron age in the north alpine zone and then rapidly spread across central and western europe this idea of celtogenesis remains deeply entrenched in scholarly and popular thought but it has become increasingly difficult to reconcile with recent discoveries pointing towards origins in the deeper past it should no longer be taken for granted that atlantic europe during the 2nd and 3rd millennia bc were pre celtic or even pre indo european the explorations in celtic from the west 3 are drawn together in this spirit continuing two earlier volumes in the influential series provided by publisher holy island is a small island just off the west coast of anglesey north wales which is rich in archaeology of all periods between 2006 and 2010 archaeological excavations in advance of a major welsh government development site parc cybi enabled extensive study of the island s past over 20 hectares were investigated revealing a busy and complex archaeological landscape which could be seen evolving from the mesolithic period through to the present day major sites discovered include an early neolithic timber hall aligned on an adjacent chambered tomb and an iron age settlement the development of which is traced by extensive dating and bayesian analysis a bronze age ceremonial complex along with the neolithic tomb defined the cultural landscape for subsequent periods a long cist cemetery of a type common on anglesey proved uncommonly to be late roman in date while elusive early medieval settlement was indicated by corn dryers this wealth of new information has revolutionised our understanding of how people have lived in and transformed the landscape of holy island many of the sites are also significant in a broader welsh context and inform the understanding of similar sites across britain and ireland a thrilling new account of the engineering triumph that created a nation in the company his bestselling work of revisionist history stephen r bown told the dramatic adventurous and bloody tale of canada s origins in the fur trade with dominion he continues the nation s creation story with an equally gripping and eye opening account of the building of the canadian pacific railway in the late 19th century demand for fur was in sharp decline this could have spelled economic disaster for the venerable hudson s bay company but an idea emerged in political and business circles in ottawa and montreal to connect the disparate british colonies into a single entity that would stretch from the atlantic to the pacific with over 3 000 kilometres of track much of it driven through wildly inhospitable terrain the cpr would be the longest railway in the world and the most difficult to build its construction was the defining event of its era and a catalyst for powerful global forces the times were marked by greed hubris blatant empire building oppression corruption and theft they were good for some hard for most disastrous for others the cpr enabled a new country but it came at a terrible price stephen r bown again widens our view of the past to include the adventures and hardships of explorers and surveyors the resistance of indigenous peoples and the terrific and horrific work of many thousands of labourers his vivid portrayal of the powerful forces that were moulding the world in the late 19th century provides a revelatory new picture of modern Canada's creation as an independent state animal characteristics and test conditions as hindrances to the development of general insight into biological regulatory mechanism the first section discusses biopharmaceutics the interaction of drugs when interacting with molecules or enzymes in sufficient concentration at a specific site of action the second section reviews animal characteristics in terms of strain differences sex differences and changes during development and aging of the subject the third section discusses the maintenance of experimental animals such as housing conditions food composition and water intake as these kinds of environmental factors may shape the phenotype and responsiveness of the experimental animal the fourth section explains the testing conditions such as metabolic effects and drug interactions anesthesia stress and even the effects on circadian rhythms the last section is a discussion on the importance of experimental results this section covers internal and external validities and statistical inference the author concludes that the design of any experiment should include a power analysis so that reliable and valuable conclusions can follow biochemists physiologists pharmacokineticists toxicologists chemical researchers and others for whom drugs are their main focus of study will find this book valuable in light of scientific advances such as genomics predictive diagnostics genetically engineered agriculture nuclear transfer cloning and the manipulation of stem cells the idea that genes carry predetermined molecular programs or blueprints is pervasive yet new scientific discoveries such as rna transcripts of single genes that can lead to the production of different compounds from the same pieces of dna challenge the concept of the gene alone as the dominant factor in biological development increasingly aware of the tension between certain empirical results and interpretations of those results based on the orthodox view of genetic determinism a growing number of scientists urge a rethinking of what a gene is and how it works in this collection a group of internationally renowned scientists present some prominent alternative approaches to understanding the role of dna in the construction and function of biological organisms contributors discuss alternatives to the programmatic view of dna including the developmental systems approach methodical culturalism the molecular process concept of the gene the hermeneutic theory of description and process structuralist biology none of the approaches cast doubt on the notion that dna is tremendously important to biological life on earth rather contributors examine different ideas of how dna should be represented evaluated and explained just as ideas about genetic codes have reached far beyond the realm of science the reconceptualizations of genetic theory in this volume have broad implications for ethics philosophy and the social sciences contributors thomas bürglin brian c goodwin james griesemer paul griffiths jesper hoffmeyer evelyn fox keller gerd b müller eva m neumann held stuart a newman susan oyama christoph rehmann sutter sahotra sarkar jackie leach scully gerry webster ulrich wolf
